The first to 7 by a margin of 2. This is used for either the first or second set that reaches 6 all in games. The 10-point Coman match tie-break will be used for matches that split sets. The match tie-break is the first to 10 by a margin of 2. The first server serves and then players change sides. The players then change sides after every 4 points (i.e. 1,5,9,13,17). This tie-break procedure allows doubles players to continue serving from the same side of the court as they have been doing throughout the set.

In the absence of a declaration, the first match played will determine which team he or she will represent.
